

THE SITE

The Runde test site is situated in the outer most part of the archipelago, facing the Norwegian Sea. The marine environment at Runde is well known for its high productivity and biological diversity. The sea off Runde is among the most important fish spawning areas in Norway, and the commercial fishing is of high importance.

PHOTO: TUSSA

Runde is also well known for its seabird colony. The island has been a popular tourist destination for bird watchers, divers and other nature enthusiasts for many decades.